BRYAN RESOLUTION IS PUT THROUGH

Called for Withdrawal of Ryan and Belmont, But Was Modified.

CONVENTION WAS IN AN UPROAR

Led Democrats Into Declaration of Progressiveness—Opposes Nomination of "Privilege Seeking Candidates."

Baltimore, June 28.—William J.
Bryan led the Democratic convention
into a declaration of progressiveness
unheard of in political history.

A resolution introduced by him
which was passed by a vote of 89 to 196, declared the convention opposed to the nomination of any candidate for president under obligation to J. Pierpont Morgan, Thomas F. Ryan, August Belmont or any "privilege
seeking class."

The convention was thrown into a furore by the proposition, which was originally introduced called for the withdrawal of Ryan and Belmont delegates from Virginia and New York
respectively.

This part of the resolution was resented as invading the rights of sovereign states.

When its full import became known
boos and catcalls, jeers and hisses
were mingled with hand clapping
cheers and stamping of feet in the galleries and on the floor.

Called Proposition Insolent.

Representative H. D. Flood of Virginia dramatically characterized the proposition as insolent and said it came from "the only man who desired
to destroy the Democratic party."

Ex-Gov. McCormick of West Virginia called it foolish. Mr. Bryan
made the situation even more dramatic by asking Virginia and New York to request a modification of the resolution, and when they scorned
the suggestion he took the course
himself.

The vote on the resolution was carried on amid scenes of tremendous excitement. At times the tumult was so great the voice of the secretary
calling the roll could not be heard.

The final vote was announced as ayes 889, nays 196.

In the view of nearly all, Mr.
Bryan, in consenting to the withdrawal of the last part of the resolution, as offered, took the teeth out of it.

While the resolution is a plain declaration against a reactionary candidate,
the general verdict was that it was
harmless in its effect on the nomination for president.

No intimation had reached the delegates of the Commoner's intention. It fairly stunned them. At first they could not grasp fully its import as it
had to be read a second time before
its full meaning was generally com-prehended.

Like T. R. at Chicago.

Roosevelt told the Chicago convention that if it did not remove the tainted delegates from its roll he would leave the party. The convention refused and Roosevelt withdrew
with his delegates.

Bryan made exactly the same demand of the Baltimore convention.
He demanded that Thomas F. Ryan
and August Belmont, as representatives of special privilege, be removed from their places in a convention that
represented the people, but receded
at the request of states which considered it no reflection to be represented by Mr. Ryan and Mr. Belmont.

By 7:30 o'clock, half an hour before the hour fixed for the session, the galleries and the guest seats on the floor were filled and the spectators
were beginning to crowd the aisles.

Mr. Bryan arose and sprang a resolved surprise by introducing a resolution and asking for its immediate consideration. Mr. Bryan read as follows:

The Resolution.

"Resolved, That in this crisis in
our party's career, and in our country's history, this convention sends greeting to the people of the United States, and assures them that the party of Jefferson and of Jackson is still the champion of popular government and equality before the law.
As proof of our fidelity to the
people, we hereby declare ourselves
opposed to the nomination of any candidate for president who is the representative of, or under any obligations to J. Pierpont Morgan, Thomas
F. Ryan, August Belmont, or any other member of the privilege-hunting and favor-seeking class; be it further

"Resolved, That we demand the withdrawal from this convention of
any delegate or delegates constitu-
ing or representing the above named
interest."

"Is there objection to immediate consideration?" asked Chairman
James.

"I object," said a member of the Connecticut delegation.

Moved to Suspend Rule.

"Objection having been made, I
move to suspend the rule and consider the resolution at this time," said
Mr. Bryan.

The convention was thrown into an
uproar.

Gov. Glichrst of Florida made a point of order that the convention had
no right to take the action suggested
by Mr. Bryan.

Chairman James held the convention had a right to do what it saw
fit and declared the motion in order
with 20 minutes on each side for debate.

Mr. Bryan then began his argument for the resolution. He said:

"This is an extraordinary resolution, but extraordinary conditions
need extraordinary remedies.

"I need not tell you that J. Pierpont Morgan and Thomas F. Ryan and August Belmont are three of the men who are connected with the money trusts of this country.

"No sense of politeness or courtesy
to such men will keep me from protecting my party from the disgrace
that they inflict upon it.

"Some have said that we haven't a right to demand the withdrawal of delegates from this convention. One of these men sits with New York and the other sits with Virginia. I make you this proposition. If the state of New York will take a poll of its vote
and a majority of them—not Mr.
Murphy, but a majority of the delegates—would, on roll call, where its delegates can have their names recorded and printed, ask for the withdrawal of the name of Mr. Belmont;
and if Virginia on roll call protest against the withdrawal of Mr. Ryan I will then withdraw the last part of
the resolution, but I will not withdraw
the first part that demands that our
candidate shall be free from entanglement with them."

Flood Replies.

Representative Flood of Virginia
asked for recognition and Mr. Bryan
yielded to him.

"In the name of the sovereign state
of Virginia," shouted Flood, "I accept
the insolent proposition made by the only man in this convention who wants to destroy Democratic success."

This brought many of the delegates
to their feet with a roar.

While a dozen men were trying
from the platform to bring the convention to order, Senator-Elect Var-daman of Mississippi declared the Bryan resolution contained "in part some merit." He approved the first part and added, "I think the fewer we have of the class named by Mr. Bryan the better chance we will have in November."

Resolution Was Modified.

Chairman James had the resolution
read as modified by Mr. Bryan. It omitted all of the last paragraph demanding the withdrawal of delegates
representing Ryan, Belmont or Morgan.

The question then was put on the motion to suspend the rules and pass
the resolution.

The vote which gave the resolution
two-thirds of the votes in the convention was cast by Texas. That state voted 40 solid for the resolution.

The final vote stood: Ayes, 889;
noes, 196; not voting 2; absent, one.

Chairman James then announced
the calling of the roll in the states
for the nominations of candidates for
president and a motion was adopted,
under the gavel, limiting nominating
speeches to 30 minutes and seconding
speeches to five minutes.

Six Hours of Oratory Bring But Four Names Before Convention.

TO BE CONTINUOUS SESSION

Adjournment Will Not Come Till Balloting is Reached—Great Demonstrations for Clark and Wilson.

Baltimore, June 28.—At an early hour in the morning the Democratic national convention was in session endeavoring to reach a first ballot in the fight to nominate a presidential candidate.

After six hours of oratory and noisy demonstrations, the names of Oscar W. Underwood, Champ Clark and Simeon J. Baldwin were before the convention. When Clark was nominated a demonstration ensued which lasted an hour and five minutes, and was participated in by 20,000 persons.

The leaders had previously agreed that the convention should remain in session until all nominations had been made and a ballot taken.

Wilson Demonstration Starts.
At 2:30 a. m. New Jersey was recognized to nominate Woodrow Wilson, and a wild demonstration began. Indications at this time were that a first ballot would not be reached before daybreak.

From a side entrance a Wilson parade filed into the hall. Banners bearing the names of 20 New York counties, and the words: "Wilson and Win," were carried by the marchers. Wilson banners of every description fell into line. The new Jersey, Texas and Pennsylvania standards swung into the procession.

Crowd Was Noisy.
Meantime, the crowd kept up a terrific din, whistling, cheering and blowing horns.

An attempt was made to carry the Wilson banners to the platform, following the example of the Clark adherents, but the officers of the convention ordered them down.

The Wilson demonstration at 3:15 a. m. passed the record made by the Clark people earlier in the session. It had been under way an hour and five minutes. At 3:20 order had been more or less restored.

Then someone brought an automobile horn in the hall, and pandemonium broke loose again.

At 3:25 a. m. Mr. Westcott began his nominating speech of Gov. Wilson.

MRS. TAFT VISITS CONVENTION

First President's Wife to be Present at Nomination of Her Husband's Opponent.

Baltimore, June 28.—The Democratic national convention was watched by the "first lady of the land." Mrs. Taft, wife of the president, came over from Washington and was an early arrival in the gallery near the speaker's platform.

She arrived with Mrs. Norman E. Mack, three quarters of an hour before the convention met.

Her seat was in the front row of the guests' gallery to the left of the chairman's stand and immediately overlooking the west section of the press gallery.

She had read in its every detail the story of the Chicago convention, where her husband was renominated, and she was deeply interested in the work of the opposing convention.

This was the first time in the history of the country, so far as the oldest convention fans recall, that the wife of a president had attended a convention which was to nominate the man who would oppose her husband for re-election.

Banner Year for Farmers.

Formosa, Kan., June 28.—Jewell county has just begun harvesting one of the best wheat crops it has had for several years. The oats are equally as good in this section. The alfalfa is immense and the corn is growing rapidly. The weather is ideal for all purposes. Jewell county is in line for the banner year on all farm products this year.

Cheap Gas at Sapulpa.

Sapulpa, Ok., June 28.—Fred J. Horton, head of a smelter company at Iola, Kan., was here inspecting the supply of gas, offered by Sapulpa at three cents a thousand for manufacturing purposes, with a view of locating his plant here. A representative of the American Smelting company of the Guggenheim interests is expected here on the same mission.

Wife Beater Was Beaten.

Beaver, Pa., June 28.—Thirty-five masked men, dressed as women, took J. W. Bowman from a policeman, after tying the officer to a fence, and escorted Bowman to a park, where they beat him with a rubber hose. Bowman had been arrested, charged with wife beating.

LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR

The Cow's Best Friend

If you are still skimming milk by the old-fashioned "setting" system you are losing about one pound of cream in every four and you are not giving your cows a square deal.

With a De Laval cream separator you would get 20 to 25% more, and much better, cream, and besides would save much sweet milk to feed to your calves and pigs.

Know that the De Laval will give you better service and last twice as long as any other separator and will be a money-maker for you.

Ask any of your neighbors who use a De Laval what kind of service their machines have given them. If a De Laval will save cream and make money for your neighbors it will do as much for you. Why not give it a trial?

Urged by Hon. James
A. Reed.

HAS CONFIDENCE OF PEOPLE

Record of the Speaker in the House of Representatives Urged as Entitling Him to Leadership of the Democratic Party.

Baltimore.—Hon. James A. Reed presented the name of the most worthy leader of the hosts of Democracy in the coming presidential campaign. He said:

We are here, not to nominate a candidate, but to select a president. To-day we shall contend, each against the other; tomorrow we must be brothers in a battle for humanity.

Ours is a high privilege and solemn duty. It should be met in a spirit of exalted patriotism. Every consideration must be subordinated to the great cause of the people. We speak not only for a party, but for a nation, for mankind, and for history.

We are about to dissolve the partnership between monopoly and government.

Sixteen years this partnership has levied tribute under the forms of law. It has taxed the crust upon the lips of hunger. It has fished the pockets of poverty.

Monopoly has financed the campaigns of Republican presidents. It has been rewarded by immunity from punishment for violation of the criminal statutes. The people turn to the Democratic party for relief.

Republican candidates have resorted to every form of false pretense, every trick of demagoguery. In order to delude the people, one of these candidates has not hesitated to attack the courts of law, and to assail the fundamentals of our government.

The Democratic party asserts that the Constitution of the Fathers—born of battle and pain, baptized in blood and tears, nurtured in wisdom and patience, defended by bravery and sacrifice—shall forever be maintained.

The Constitution was created by the people for the protection of the liberties of the people. It was the decree of man asserting his sovereignty. When it was written, the shadow of despotism rested upon every land. Hereditary monarchs scoured the earth with fire and sword, exercised the power of life and death, and enforced their decrees by scaffold, pillory and sword.

Behold now the marvelous change! The fires lighted upon our shores have swept round the world, consuming the citadels of arbitrary power, until they have reached the throne of the Manchus and the seraglios and fortresses of the Ottomans.

The principles of the American Constitution will soon be accepted as the fundamentals of all civilized government.

Beneath its protection, America has marched from triumph to triumph. Half a continent has been gained, transformed into homes, enriched with cities, glorified with temples of religion and seminaries of learning, and peopled by the greatest race of men who have lived since the sun first kissed the horizon of time. Beneath our Constitution, all have been secure—no man so strong he did not need its shield; no wretch so weak he might not find refuge under its provisions.

It has survived the hatred of monarchs, the attacks of foreign foes, the horrors of fratricidal strife; it will continue to survive all assaults.

The Democratic party has always been the friend of the Constitution, its immortal principles were first blazed into the night of tyranny when the hand of Jefferson held aloft the Declaration of Independence.

The same great Democrat insured the perpetuity of liberty when he wrote the Bill of Rights.

The Democratic party has made mistakes, but it has always held fast to the Constitution. It has always declared that free government must be a government of law. It also knows that he who assails the Constitution of the people, even though he has twice been president, is none the less an enemy of the republic and of liberty.

We recognize the truth that all laws and the Constitution itself should, when necessary, be amended to meet changed conditions. But we refuse to assail the structure of our government or to incorporate intellectual vagaries and fantastic experiments into our jurisprudence.

We stand for government by law. It is for this very reason we insist that the law against illegal combinations must be rigorously enforced.

Under Roosevelt the trusts flourished as a green bay tree; under Taft the tree has grown and spread its branches until their shadow covers all the land.

Roosevelt's policies in all their fundamentals have been perpetuated by Taft. If either is elected, these policies will continue. Yet each loudly proclaims himself a progressive.

The necessity for progress presupposes a condition so bad that we must run from it. Taft and Roosevelt are responsible for present conditions. The cry of progress upon their lips is a confession of failure and guilt. Recognizing the fact that the people condemn their official acts, these gentlemen seek to shift the issue from a comparison of performances to a program of promises.

The Republican contest is only a battle between the great interests. It is a contest of syndicates.

The truth is at last manifest and Democracy will triumph. I want my party to win, but I want it to win more than an office. I would have it win because it stands for great and righteous principles.

I want it to meet all great problems in patience, in fortitude, in wisdom, in courage. I want it to strike with an iron hand, but to strike only in justice. We must occupy the field of wise, careful, brave statesmanship. Our policies must be constructive, rather than destructive.

Our party should so act that Democracy shall be a blessed name upon the tongue of man.

The situation is epic. The contest will not be a summer-day excursion. It will not be won in a single campaign. Special privilege is entrenched; its empires are high places; its resources are incalculable; its allies are legion. It fights to retain the right to plunder the greatest nation on earth. The prize is enormous. It will not be yielded without the most desperate resistance.

Fronting such a contest, we are about to select a leader to whom we must entrust the party and the national honor. I want that leader to be a man who in every impulse of heart and sentiment of soul is devoted to the cause of the people. I would select a Democratic Bayard, who stands without fear, without reproach, without taint of disloyalty.

Half of every battle is the general. No army of men ever fought well behind a leader whose loyalty the rank and file doubted. No army was ever well generated by a raw recruit, or did its best behind a novice who tripped upon his own sword.

In such a struggle as lies before us give me for a leader no "summer soldier or sunshine patriot." Give me no political dilettante, who comes into camp when honors are most ripe to pluck. I want no half-fledged chameleon who is only just beginning to acquire a Democratic crown.

Let me rather have for general him who has suffered the hardships of the camp, the toils of the march, the dangers of the field; who has stood at the bloody angle; who has proven his mettle in the baptism of fire.

Let me tell you of such a leader: he was born in that good Democratic state

"Where men are brave,
Where women are fair,
The land of Old Kentucky."

There his eyes first opened to behold the love-light shining in the face of a Democratic mother. Mingled with the notes of her lullaby, the myriad sounds of farm life were borne to his baby ears. About the next thing he heard was his Democratic father reading a Democratic platform. He has been a Democrat ever since.

He was not born to luxury. He sprang from that stock which produced the men who subdued the west, the people whose hearts are instinct with patriotic love of country and liberty.

A boy of tender years, he began the struggle of life for himself. It is a story of toils and achievement. At twelve years of age he was earning his living clerking in a grocery store. At fifteen he was teaching in the country schools of his native state. At twenty-three he was president of Marshall college, West Virginia.

Two years later he graduated with distinction from the Cincinnati School of Law. He paid his way through school and earned the money by the hardest kind of labor.

As a lawyer he rose to distinction. The same habits of study which had marked his youth, characterized his professional career. In point of learning he is the equal of any man in American life. There is not a page of our history or a principle of our Constitution or laws with which he is not familiar.

This man sympathizes with the common people. He recognizes the nobility of labor. His feet have felt the sharp stones of adversity. He loves the common people because he is of the common people. He has seen them labor at their tasks, and has bent his own back in toil. He looks his fellow-men in the eyes from the level. You do not need to strain your neck to see him. He has never ceased to love the common man; he has never been ashamed of his early poverty.

Let me quote you an expression from his own lips, delivered in the house of representatives in August, 1911:

"Whenever a man stands up and undertakes to do anything for the benefit of the great masses of the people, he is denounced by the interests as a demagogue and is charged with playing politics. But to stand up and advocate the cause of the interests is the highest evidence of statesmanship. As far as I am individually concerned, I sprang from the loins of the common people. God bless them; I am one of them. I labored with my hands in my youth, and I would do so again tomorrow. I unhesitatingly take my stand with the consumers of the land against the interests."

We hear much today of Progressives. The term has perhaps never been clearly defined. But if you mean by a progressive one who studies conditions, and, recognizing an evil, bravely seeks for and applies a remedy, then I assert that this man has a record unsurpassed.

He does not cling to a thing simply because it is hoary with age. Neither will he embrace one because it is new. He is conservative enough to believe that nothing should be destroyed merely because it has lasted a long time. He is progressive enough not to reject an idea simply because it is not covered with the mildew of antiquity.

He believes that all changes demand sober consideration, but he recognizes that changing conditions demand changes in laws, and that wise leadership embraces the idea of consistent progression.

vision not only saw the danger, but applied the remedy. He drew the first and most stringent anti-trust statute ever enacted in the United States. It has stood the test of all the courts, and become the model for other states to follow.

Twenty-four years ago he placed upon the statute books of his state a law guarding the secrets of the ballot.

He advocated the direct primary system twenty years ago; and applied it in his congressional district.

It is 13 years since he contended for the enactment of the most rigid corrupt practice act to be found upon the statute books.

Five years ago he advocated the initiative and referendum in his own state. He was not, as some others are, disturbed lest the people should destroy themselves.

As early as 1885 he declared for the direct election of senators. Five times has he voted for that measure, and for years in congress has been its distinguished advocate.

During all of his long public service, he has been one of the most valiant champions of tariff reform.

I place before you this record, made not when lust of office lures, but written in the story of the years, and graven upon the public statutes of the country; and I challenge comparison.

It is not a record of protestation and promises, of faith without works; but it is a record of performance, of faith crystallized into acts.

All his life this man has been a Democrat. He has not been an occasional Democrat. He does not belong to that class of Democrats who steal out of nights, sleep in strange political beds, and then come trailing home about the time they can smell the breakfast bacon frying.

He is not a fair-weather soldier. He has marched in the procession when there was no band to lead. He did not enlist for one campaign; he volunteered for life.

Forty years ago, he cast his first ballot. He has voted the Democratic ticket ever since, and voted it straight. He has done so, not from prejudice of opinion, or servility of mind, but because he knows that notwithstanding all mistakes, all blunders and all shortcomings, the Democratic party was, and is, the one single force standing to defend the temple of liberty and equality.

In every campaign from 1872 to the present hour, this soldier has been in every battle. He has never removed his uniform, laid down his sword, or taken a furlough.

In the great campaign of 1896, when desertion thinned our ranks and disaster engulfed our hopes, he helped to raise our banner on the stricken field, and stood with those who cried, "Courage! Courage! Justice is immortal! Courage, soldiers of the Democracy! Gird up your loins for battles yet to come!"

I saw him then, grim, determined, undismayed. I heard his clarion voice ring forth without a single note of fear.

I saw him upon other fields, when days were dark and the long years, heaping disaster upon disaster, brought despair to many a stout and loyal heart; and yet there does not live a man who ever saw him quit his post or waver in the fight.

Always and ever his face has been fair-fronted to the foe; always and ever his cry has been, "Close ranks, and Forward! The Right will yet prevail!"

What wonder that party leadership came, and with it party victory?

We had passed through dark days. The election of 1904 left us without control of a single state legislature north of Mason and Dixon's line. In all that vast territory there was but one Democratic governor. Our representation in congress had dwindled to a pitiable minority.

Nineteen hundred and eight found some improvement, but the situation was yet disheartening and desperate. The people had come to regard us as a mere opposition party, without cohesion or policy. Our forces had ceased to be potent.

After the election of 1908, the Democratic congressman selected the man whom I shall name for minority leader. In fourteen months of time, the new leader wrought marvellous change. The iron grip of Cannon was broken. It was the beginning; "after that, the deluge."

With the authority to command, he never issued an order. He preferred counsel to decrees. He called his associates together, and listened to their opinions. He manifested that high statesmanship which unites discordant elements and inspires them with a common purpose.

The Payne-Aldrich iniquity was forced through congress, but not as similar bills had been enacted. The feeble opposition of a daunted minority had given place to the fire, vigor and courage which contests every inch of ground, and gains strength from each defeat. When that struggle was over, the Republican party had been unmasked, its breach of faith demonstrated.

Towering above all others in that historic fight was the great minority leader. I can see him yet, cool, collected, relentless, the light of battle still flashing from his gray eyes, his square jaw rigid with determination, as he advanced to the speaker's chair. I can hear his challenge:

"Mr. Chairman, Payne says that he and his cohorts will meet us in November. . . . I never looked forward to any day with so much joy as I do to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November, except to my wedding day and the days on which my children were born. My Democratic brethren, at last, after hard trials and great tribulations, thank God, we stand here shoulder to shoulder, heart to heart, solid as a stone wall, inspired by the hopes of coming victory. . . . My Republican friends, you will meet us in November because you can not help yourselves. And when you do meet us, you will receive the bloodiest defeat you have had since 1892. Guards, and at them!"

That challenge became the real issue of the campaign of 1910. Upon that issue we changed a Republican majority in the House of Representatives to a Democratic majority of 200 to 100. It was not a battle; it was a revolution—a revolution in the pivotal states.

It was gained in the very states which we must win if we elect a president.

The man who made that issue retains the confidence of the people of those great pivotal states. His popularity is confined to no section. In his campaign, he has remained quietly at his post of duty. He has not afforded the spectacle of a presidential candidate clamorously parading the country with brass bands and red lights, soliciting votes. He did not need to. He had made so many speeches for his party it was unnecessary to make any for himself.

His campaign has been made by the people for him. It has been conducted almost without money and without organization. Yet, you can march across this continent from the extreme east to the distant west, and from our northern border to our southern line, and not set foot on territory that is not loyal to his cause.

He counts in his column substantially all of the delegates of twenty-two sovereign states. His popularity has swept across the sea, and he will be supported here on every ballot by substantially all of the delegates from the territorial and insular possessions.

He carried his own state by a unanimous vote. He carried every state touching its borders. He carried the states of the great northwestern corner of the continent. He carried almost solidly that great domain known as the middle west. With two exceptions he swept all states west of the Rocky Mountains.

I have said he carried these states; let me rather say, the loyal Democracy, the Democracy that has never faltered, that has with unwavering allegiance followed the flag, carried them for him.

What are the great issues upon which we must fight the battle of 1912? Is it not upon the record made by the Democratic House of Representatives? That record is a story of achievement, of promises redeemed, and pledges kept; of patient, wise, brave statesmanship.

Over the deliberations of that body he has presided. He brought to the office the wisdom of experience, and a judgment ripened by long and close contact with the problems of government.

I would not detract a hair's weight from the honors due to all Democratic congressmen. I would not pluck a single leaf from the brow of the present great majority leader. I give to all due meed of praise. But yet I say, here is the real leader. Here is the man who most of all has borne the burdens and responsibilities, whose counsel has guided, who pointed the way: whose keen intellect, superb courage, and masterly generalship have forged the force which has been driven like a wedge through the body of the Republican party and split it asunder.

The army of the Democracy is forming in battle array. The sun of hope glorifies the horizon of the future, and sheds its splendor upon our banners. Above us bends the myriad-hued bow of promise. We have been led to the very gates of success by a veteran grown gray in the service. Let him continue to lead, and the celestial bow will become an arch of triumph, beneath which Democracy will march in glorious victory.

And so I nominate this man, who has fought a thousand battles for Democracy and not one against her; who has never lowered his flag or asked for quarter; who has never deserted nor taken a furlough; who does not know how to quit a friend or betray a party; whose back the enemy has never seen, but whose breast is covered with the scars of many a hard campaign; who leads today and who should continue to lead—the Lion of Democracy, Champ Clark of Missouri!

A DRAMATIC SCENE

VAN'S DESCRIPTION OF GREAT BALTIMORE CONVENTION.

BRYAN'S EFFORT FAILED

Had Issue Not Been Precipitated as Immediate Fight Result Might Have Been Different.

(By W. C. VAN CLEVE.)

Baltimore, Md., June 25.—If the first session is a fair sample, the Baltimore convention will be a show well worth the money. It opened with a slap-bang and the fireworks were going before the delegates were fairly seated. Tumult and pandemonium reigned until 3 o'clock, when William J. Bryan went down to defeat in one of the most spectacular struggles of his career, and Judge Alton B. Parker was introduced as the temporary chairman.

Tramendous effort was made yesterday and last night to effect a compromise and conciliate the great commoner, but conciliation is not in his vocabulary, and it all came to naught. He demanded the unconditional withdrawal of Judge Parker's name, and the national committee steadfastly refused. They were willing that Bryan should be permanent chairman, but they refused to change their program as to Parker. Bryan and Parker were finally gotten together, but an hour's conference between the two big jawed, determined men left them where they began. Mr. Parker had prepared a speech that he thought should meet all requirements. It was submitted to Mr. Bryan and he said it wouldn't do. So fifteen thousand people made their way out to convention hall this morning through a drizzling rain to watch the fray. Ollie James had tried and lost in the committee. Senator O'Gorman and others were appealed to in vain. A conference was held this morning and Senator Kern was picked at the last minute.

Excitement and enthusiasm were intense as Chairman Mack called the great body together. Cardinal Gibbons prayed that "the light of Divine wisdom direct the deliberations of this convention and shine forth in all its proceedings." Then the temporary officers selected were announced and the figure of Bryan, familiar to Democrats the nation over, appeared as the last words of the announcement floated out over the great hall. Mr. Bryan was not in his usual good voice, but he made a great plea to set aside the verdict of the committee. His admirers throughout the great audience could hardly contain themselves and roared their boisterous approval of his words to his evident annoyance and confusion. He asked the delegates to elect Senator John W. Kern of Indiana.

There came a dramatic coup that surprised the Parker men. Senator Kern asked Mr. Parker to step aside with him and give place to some third man. Judge Parker failed to accept the suggestion, and the senator then offered the name of Mr. Bryan. Up went a yell from thousands of excited men as the issue was to be concentrated in the two men around whom the storm raged. Then Theodore Bell of California came to the front. He declared he was Mr. Bryan's permanent chairman at Denver four years ago, and that he brought to this convention the same sort of Democracy that he preached at Denver, but that he would cast his vote in this case for Alton B. Parker. He got no further for the time being. "Bryan, Bryan," rose in deafening shouts, to which a storm of voices answered "Parker, Parker." The crowd seemed to be pretty evenly balanced, but the Bryan shouters were more vociferous. For half an hour the brilliant young Pacific coast orator battled with the unmanageable mass of humanity, and gave up the effort. Other men tried with no better success, and the disorder became so great that the police were called into action. There was no violence manifested, and no serious loss of temper, but it was a rare display of excited enthusiasm and the aroused spirit of a militant Democracy. The band played and the storm was assuaged, and the voting began, as it was useless to try to carry on the discussion.

of their various presidential candidates. When he concluded his speech there were some "toot, toots" and "choo, choos" from the audience. It was time for the roller to move, but the skilled leaders didn't want to overdo the thing. Otherwise the majority might have been larger.

The general feeling tonight is that the present situation means the nomination of Champ Clark on the second or third ballot. Governor Wilson staked his all with Bryan. He took what appeared to be an even chance and lost, despite the elaborate banners and flowing colors on every hand. Wilson took a big slump this afternoon. On the other hand, Clark stock is buoyant and aggressive. Though a delegate from Nebraska, instructed for Clark, Mr. Bryan's efforts have all been expended in behalf of Wilson, and the belief is strong in this convention that if Bryan had been able to control the selection of a temporary chairman he would have stamped the convention at some later stage and have become the nominee. Whether that had anything to do with his determination to force an immediate showdown is unknown. The suggestion may do him an injustice, but it is the firm conviction of many here that Bryan was a candidate for the nomination. He declined to deny that he might be under certain conditions.

Everybody is again hoping for peace, but up to this hour the great central figure, even in defeat, has not spoken his mind as to the morrow.

STILL SAYS IT IS CLARK.

Harry Irwin at Baltimore Believes the Missouriian Will Win.

Harry Irwin of this city, who is attending the Democratic national convention at Baltimore this week, sent the following telegram to Frank Owens, the telegram being sent from the convention city at 11 o'clock Thursday night:

"Clark decidedly strongest of all candidates as nominating session begins tonight. Leaders still believe he will be named by third ballot, although Bryan's attitude has been unsatisfactory from the first. Seems sure Wilson never can be nominated. Looks like Clark or dark horse. We believe it will be Clark."

Necessary to a nomination 725 1/2.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Baltimore, Md., June 28.—The first ballot for president was taken this morning, after an all-night stormy session, caused by the Bryan resolutions that no candidate be nominated who had the stamp of Morgan, Ryan, Belmont or the money power. The ballot on president was taken at 6:30 o'clock this morning and the result of the vote is given above.

The convention adjourned after the ballot was taken and will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon. It is predicted that a candidate for president will be selected tonight.

The leaders at noon today are making the following claims:

Chairman James of Kentucky thinks it is Clark on the second ballot. Hall of Nebraska says it is Gaynor or Kern. Guffey of Pennsylvania says Bryan's strength is shattered. Wood of Michigan thinks Bryan has killed Wilson's chances.

Bell of California is of the opinion that Clark's chances are better than ever.

Necessary to choice since barring Philippines, 725 1-3.

Bulletins This Evening.

The Democrat-Forum has made arrangements for the latest bulletins from Baltimore late this afternoon and tonight, when a candidate for president will be nominated.

THE WALKING CLUB.

Maryville Parties Walked to Skidmore Last Sunday, Taking Them Six Hours.

The following is from the Skidmore New Era of this week:

There is a club organized in Maryville and called "The Walking club." Among the number are Misses Lottie Perrin and Donna Sisson and Messrs. Eek and Wells. This quartet of young people left Maryville at 7 o'clock Sunday morning and walked to Skidmore, arriving at the home of W. M. Howden at 1 o'clock, where they were the guests of Misses Minta and Babe Howden. A sumptuous dinner was prepared and waiting for them, and we have no doubt the meal was heartily enjoyed by the young folks, after their little sprint of fifteen miles. They returned home on the train Sunday evening.

Total white children	8,129

Lone Valley, or Monkey Run, district, had only 3. There are 179 school districts in the county, or 167 rural school districts.

Has Filed Suit for Divorce.

Frederick Anderson, formerly a resident of Nodaway county, has filed suit in the circuit court at St. Joseph for divorce from his wife, Jane, to whom he was married in 1862. He contends that last August his wife left his home in St. Joseph, after having drawn $6,000 from a bank, and went to California. The plaintiff had deposited the money, subject to her check, according to the petition.

WAS FILED TOO LATE

CONTENTION OF REMONSTRATORS TO THE SALOON PETITION.

COURT TO HEAR MONDAY

Question of This Session Being Part of May Term Involved—May Come at August Term.

A remonstrator's petition was filed in County Clerk Demott's office Thursday against the issuing of a dramshop license in the Nubbaum building, on North Market street.

The petition was signed by G. J. Moore, F. C. Conrad and W. W. Glass, and states that the county court has no jurisdiction over the application and petition filed by Heller, and any license issued upon said application would be void, for the reason that the application has not been on file in the office of the county clerk for at least ten days before the first day of the regular term of the court to which the application is addressed. All of which is necessary before this court has any jurisdiction to grant the said license.

The contention is that Heller's application should have been filed ten days before the May term of court, as that is the regular term. The July term of the court is an adjourned term from May. There are only four regular terms of county court, as follows: February, May, August and November.

Mr. Heller filed his application on June 20, and it is said that he has over two-thirds of the resident property owners of that block. In case the court refuses to issue the license at this term, Mr. Heller will probably file his application for the regular August term of the court.

The John Kane saloon license will also come up at the regular term of the court in August. The "drys" will make a fight on Kane on the grounds that he is not a law-abiding citizen, so it is said. It has been rumored for some time that Kane would not apply again for a saloon license, and that some other man would take over his saloon.

The Heller petition will come up before the court on Monday.

Vocal duet by Miss Sebee Rowley and Miss Martha Denny with mandolin accompaniment by Miss Alma Nash and Miss Elizabeth Nash. Vocal solo, "Clover Blossoms," by Miss Hilda Denny. They were assisted by Misses Martha Denny, Dorothy McDonald, Gladys Owen and Jessie Wiggington of Macedonia, Ia., who is visiting her sister, Mrs. L. A. Denny. BELIEVES IN LUCK

F. P. JOLLY'S CREED EMBRACES LUCK—NOT CHANCE.

44 WERE GRADUATE

Large Audience and Fine Program at Business College Commencement Thursday Night.

A splendid audience of graduates and the community gathered at the business college at the commencement exercises Thursday night, the first Christian church. It was the known results of that institution among men of this section of the positions that are being held. Graduates are proof enough of its value to the community.

As the twenty-two young men and twenty-two young women came in the church and took their places in the rostrum Miss Ola Smith played the Triumphant march.

The young ladies were extremely attractive in the business suits of black skirts, white shirt waists and string ties, and many complimentary remarks were heard upon the appropriate selection for graduation night.

After the invocation by Rev. Claude J. Miller, a vocal solo, "A May Morning," by Denza, was sung by Mrs. E. P. Robinson in her sweetest voice.

President E. S. Cook of the Business college then introduced the speaker of the evening, Franklin Pierce Jolly of Joliet, who, it is claimed, has delivered more commencement addresses for business colleges than any other man in the country. His subject was "How to Win in the Battle of Life."

Mr. Jolly is an advocate of cheerfulness and happiness as an asset for business success. He does not believe that anyone should think more of himself than he should and be puffed up in spirit, but he is not an advocate of "I am a worm of the dust" doctrine. He says that anyone who goes singing "Oh, to be nothinker," hits that mark with wonderment.

"Keep your soul in tune," Divine and learn relaxation of body from toil, both mental and physical, and you will be in fit health for any task. Think healthful thoughts for your body and your business interests and you will succeed. In other words, cultivate your higher nature, live close to the commands and admonitions of the best of books, treat everybody well, give the world the best you have, and the best will come back to you. Success is the illustration of the soul."

After Mr. Jolly's address Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Eversole gave a piano and pipe organ duet, the sextet from "Lucia," that was indeed delightful. Mr. Becker followed with a bass solo, "A Son of the Desert Am I." The presentation of the diplomas was then made in a neat speech by Mr. Charles McCaffrey.

President E. S. Cook conferred the degrees upon the candidates as given in yesterday's paper, and presented to Miss Beulah McCoppin of Bolckow the gold medal offered by the Remington Typewriter company, together with the $20 offered by the college for her superior work in typewriting.

CONVENTION WAS IN AN UPROAR

Led Democrats Into Declaration of Progressiveness—Opposes Nomination of "Privilege Seeking Candidates."

Baltimore, June 28.—William J.
Bryan led the Democratic convention
into a declaration of progressiveness
unheard of in political history.

A resolution introduced by him
which was passed by a vote of 889 to 196, declared the convention opposed
to the nomination of any candidate for president under obligation to J. Pierpont
Morgan, Thomas F. Ryan, August Belmont or any "privilege seeking class."

The convention was thrown into a furore by the proposition, which was originally introduced called for the
withdrawal of Ryan and Belmont delegates from Virginia and New York
respectively.

This part of the resolution was re-
sented as invading the rights of
sovereign states.

When its full import became known
boos and catcalls, jeers and hisses
were mingled with hand clapping
cheers and stamping of feet in the
galleries and on the floor.

Called Proposition Insult.

Representative H. D. Flood of Virginia dramatically characterized the proposition as insulting and said it came from "the only man who desired
to destroy the Democratic party."

Ex-Gov. McCormick of West Virginia called it foolish. Mr. Bryan
made the situation even more dramatic by asking Virginia and New York to request a modification of the
resolution, and when they scorned
the suggestion he took the course
himself.

The vote on the resolution was carried on amid scenes of tremendous excitement. At times the tumult was
so great the voice of the secretary
calling the roll could not be heard.

The final vote was announced as 889, nays 196.

In the view of nearly all, Mr.
Bryan, in consenting to the withdraw-
al of the last part of the resolution, as
offered, took the teeth out of it.
While the resolution is a plain declaration against a reactionary candidate,
the general verdict was that it was
harmless in its effect on the nomination for president.

The resolution was an explosion.
No intimation had reached the delegates of the Commoner's intention. It fairly stunned them. At first they could not grasp fully its import as it
had to be read a second time before
its full meaning was generally com-
prehended.

Like T. R. at Chicago.

Roosevelt told the Chicago convention that if it did not remove the
tainted delegates from its roll he
would leave the party. The convention refused and Roosevelt withdrew
with his delegates.

Bryan made exactly the same demand of the Baltimore convention.
He demanded that Thomas F. Ryan
and August Belmont, as representatives of special privilege, be removed
from their places in a convention that
represented the people, but receded
at the request of states which considered it no reflection to be represented by Mr. Ryan and Mr. Belmont.

By 7:30 o'clock, half an hour before the hour fixed for the session, the galleries and the guest seats on the floor were filled and the spectators
were beginning to crowd the aisles.

Mr. Bryan arose and sprang a decided surprise by introducing a resolution and asking for its immediate consideration. Mr. Bryan read as
follows:

The Resolution.
Resolved, That in this crisis in
our party's career, and in our country's history, this convention sends
greeting to the people of the United States, and assures them that the
party of Jefferson and of Jackson is
still the champion of popular government and equality before the law.
As proof of our fidelity to the
people, we hereby declare ourselves
opposed to the nomination of any
candidate for president who is the
representative of, or under any obligations to J. Pierpont Morgan, Thomas
F. Ryan, August Belmont, or any other member of the privilege-hunting and favor-seeking class; be it
further

"Resolved, That we demand the
withdrawal from this convention of
any delegate or delegates constitu-
ing or representing the above named
interest."

"Is there objection to immediate consideration?" asked Chairman
James.

"I object," said a member of the Connecticut delegation.

Moved to Suspend Rule.

"Objection having been made, I
move to suspend the rule and consider the resolution at this time," said
Mr. Bryan.

The convention was thrown into an
uproar.
Gov. Gilchrist of Florida made a point of order that the convention had
no right to take the action suggested
by Mr. Bryan.

Chairman James held the convention had a right to do what it saw
fit and declared the motion in order
with 20 minutes on each side for
debate.

Mr. Bryan then began his argument for the resolution. He said:
"This is an extraordinary resolution, but extraordinary conditions
need extraordinary remedies.
I need not tell you that J. Pierpont Morgan and Thomas F. Ryan, and August Belmont are three of the who are connected with the money trusts of this country.

"No sense of politeness or courtesy
to such men will keep me from protecting my party from the disgrace
that they inflict upon it."

"Some have said that we haven't a
right to demand the withdrawal of delegates from this convention. I will make you a proposition. One of these men sits with New York and the other sits with Virginia. I make
you this proposition. If the state of
New York will take a poll of its vote
and a majority of them—not Mr.
Murphy, but a majority of the delegates—would, on roll call, where its
delegates can have their names recorded and printed, ask for the withdrawal of the name of Mr. Belmont;
and if Virginia on roll call protest
against the withdrawal of Mr. Ryan I
will then withdraw the last part of
the resolution, but I will not withdraw
the first part that demands that our
candidate shall be free from entangle-
ment with them."

Flood Replies.

Representative Flood of Virginia
asked for recognition and Mr. Bryan
yielded to him.

"In the name of the sovereign state
of Virginia," shouted Flood, "I accept
the insolent proposition made by the
only man in this convention who
wants to destroy Democratic success."

This brought many of the delegates
to their feet with a roar.

While a dozen men were trying
from the platform to bring the convention to order, Senator-Elect Vardman of Mississippi declared the Bryan
resolution contained "in part some merit." He approved the first part and added, "I think the fewer we have
of the class named by Mr. Bryan the
better chance we will have in November."

Resolution Was Modified.

Chairman James had the resolution
read as modified by Mr. Bryan. It
omitted all of the last paragraph demanding the withdrawal of delegates
representing Ryan, Belmont or Morgan.

The question then was put on the motion to suspend the rules and pass
the resolution.

The vote which gave the resolution
two-thirds of the votes in the convention was cast by Texas. That state
voted 40 solid for the resolution.

The final vote stood: Ayes, 889;
noes, 196; not voting 2; absent, one.
Chairman James then announced
the calling of the roll in the states
for the nominations of candidates for
president and a motion was adopted,
under the gavel, limiting nominating
speeches to 30 minutes and seconding
speeches to five minutes.

NIGHT PASSED

Six Hours of Oratory Bring But Four Names Before Convention.

TO BE CONTINUOUS SESSION

Adjournment Will Not Come Till Balloting is Reached—Great Demonstrations for Clark and Wilson.

Baltimore, June 28.—At an early hour in the morning the Democratic national convention was in session endeavoring to reach a first ballot in the fight to nominate a presidential candidate.

After six hours of oratory and noisy demonstrations, the names of Oscar W. Underwood, Champ Clark and Simeon J. Baldwin were before the convention. When Clark was nominated a demonstration ensued which lasted an hour and five minutes, and was participated in by 20,000 persons.

The leaders had previously agreed that the convention should remain in session until all nominations had been made and a ballot taken.

Wilson Demonstration Starts.

At 2:30 a. m. New Jersey was recognized to nominate Woodrow Wilson, and a wild demonstration began. Indications at this time were that a first ballot would not be reached before daybreak.

From a side entrance a Wilson parade filed into the hall. Banners bearing the names of 20 New York counties, and the words: "Wilson and Win," were carried by the marchers. Wilson banners of every description fell into line. The New Jersey, Texas and Pennsylvania standards swung into the procession.

Crowd Was Noisy.

Meantime, the crowd kept up a terrific din, whistling, cheering and blowing horns.

An attempt was made to carry the Wilson banners to the platform, following the example of the Clark adherents, but the officers of the convention ordered them down.

The Wilson demonstration at 3:15 a. m. passed the record made by the Clark people earlier in the session. It had been under way an hour and five minutes. At 3:20 order had been more or less restored.

Then someone brought an automobile horn in the hall, and pandemonium broke loose again.

At 3:25 a. m. Mr. Westcott began his nominating speech of Gov. Wilson.

MRS. TAFT VISITS CONVENTION

First President's Wife to be Present at Nomination of Her Husband's Opponent.

Baltimore, June 28.—The Democratic national convention was watched by the "first lady of the land." Mrs. Taft, wife of the president, came over from Washington and was an early arrival in the gallery near the speaker's platform.

She arrived with Mrs. Norman E. Mack, three quarters of an hour before the convention met.

Her seat was in the front row of the guests' gallery to the left of the chairman's stand and immediately overlooking the west section of the press gallery.

She had read in its every detail the story of the Chicago convention, where her husband was renominated, and she was deeply interested in the work of the opposing convention.

This was the first time in the history of the country, so far as the oldest convention fans recall, that the wife of a president had attended a convention which was to nominate the man who would oppose her husband for re-election.

Banner Year for Farmers.

Formosa, Kan., June 28.—Jewell county has just begun harvesting one of the best wheat crops it has had for several years. The oats are equally as good in this section. The alfalfa is immense and the corn is growing rapidly. The weather is ideal for all purposes. Jewell county is in line for the banner year on all farm products this year.

Cheap Gas at Sapulpa.

Sapulpa, Ok., June 28.—Fred J. Horton, head of a smelter company at Iola, Kan., was here inspecting the supply of gas, offered by Sapulpa at three cents a thousand for manufacturing purposes, with a view of locating his plant here. A representative of the American Smelting company of the Guggenheim interests is expected here on the same mission.

Wife Beater Was Beaten.

Beaver, Pa., June 28.—Thirty-five masked men, dressed as women, took J. W. Bowman from a policeman, after tying the officer to a fence, and escorted Bowman to a park, where they beat him with a rubber hose. Bowman had been arrested, charged with wife beating.
